GATEWAY CENTER FOR DOMESTIC VIOLENCE SERVICES GRAND OPENING—Wednesday, September 8, 2010

Portland City Commissioner Dan Saltzman and Multnomah County Chair Jeff Cogen will host the grand opening of the Gateway Center for Domestic Violence Services Wednesday, September 8 at 1pm, along with special guests U.S. Senator Ron Wyden, and U.S. Congressman Earl Blumenauer.

The first of its kind in Oregon, the Gateway Center is a comprehensive, one-stop services center in the Portland area that helps victims of domestic violence and their children receive services under one roof.

Commissioner Saltzman said, "Domestic violence has hurt too many lives already. The Gateway Center is the product of our community stepping forward and helping families before tragedy occurs."

"Now, for the first time, victims of domestic violence have a single place to come to for the help they need," Senator Ron Wyden said. "No more going from building to building, department to department or from the city to the county looking for help. This center will provide an easily accessible, safe, welcoming and secure environment for victims of domestic violence and their children."

Tours and a live demonstration of the remote video restraining order technology will also be available at the grand opening.

Grand Opening Wednesday, September 8th at 1 PM 10305 East Burnside Portland, OR 97216
